PURCHASE OF STREET GRADER AUTHORIZED BY CITY COUNCIL

AFTER many months of consideration and frequent discussion in the council chambers, purchase of a street grader was authorized Wednesday evening, and Street Commissioner Burge was empowered to proceed with the project which he proposed last month, purchase on rental terms of a machine from the J. D. Adams Company. The total purchase price is $4,437.36, to be paid monthly at the rate of $184.89. The only dissenting vote was from Councilman Rowntree, who stuck to his previously enunciated point that responsibility for an expenditure of this size should not be delegated to one councilman.

Police and Light Commissioner Catlin was authorized to proceed with installation of lights at the foot of Ocean avenue, near Del Mar, and near Del Mar and Eighth, as requested by the chief of police, in order both to protect and discourage late petting parties.

John Neikirk was appointed to draw up an engineer's report of the cost of two tennis courts, following the report last month by the recreation committee favoring building these courts in a hollow in the city-owned sand dunes. The council has taken no official action on the tennis courts and will not do so until cost figures are available. If accepted, the tennis court plan will be presented as a WPA project.

Citizen Kent Clark entered a verbal protest to the sand dune location, asking if the possibility of locating the courts on the Sunset school campus had been fully investigated. He and other spectators expressed the opinion that Sunset school grounds are "plenty big enough" to include tennis courts. Councilman Brownell, chairman of the recreation committee, quoted statements of E. H. Ewig of the board of school trustees, who was a member of the committee, and Superintendent O. W. Bardarson, to the effect that the school grounds are not large enough, that while a location at the school would be highly desirable, additional land would have to be purchased for the purpose. Mayor Thoburn stated that he is not in favor of tennis courts on the dunes, that he had appointed a committee which he thought would block the project, but that it had turned in a unanimous favorable report.

One year's contract for city printing was let to The Pine Cone, the only bidder.

Requests of the Masonic club for reclassification of its lot as business property, and of owners of two other lots intermediate between the club and the business district were received and the date for public hearing on the matter set for Nov. 27. The council adjourned to meet again on Nov. 20.

Pioneer Is Taken By Heart Attack

Old Carmelites mourned the passing of a second long-time and well-beloved resident this week. Mrs. Catharine Moore Curtis passed away Tuesday at her home on Ocean avenue, after a year of poor health, with a heart attack as the direct cause. She was 66 years of age and had lived in Carmel since 1912. For the past 23 years she had conducted the restaurant, candy store and soda fountain in which her husband, C. Delos Curtis, who survives her, was associated with her. The generosity of the Curtises, their neighborliness and the friendly and informal atmosphere which pervades it, has made their establishment a favorite gathering place for old Carmelites. Until a few months ago Mrs. Curtis was in and of the shop, recently she has been seen infrequently at her favorite post.

Mrs. Curtis was born in Scotland, where live numerous relatives. She came to the United States in 1902. In addition to her husband the only immediate relative in this country is her niece, Lily Sanders, of Carmel.

The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the Freeman chapel in Monterey, followed by burial in Monterey cemetery.

August Englund, Former Carmel Police Chief, Dies In San Francisco

DEATH closed the career of August Englund, 67, and ended a long and gallant fight for life, at the Veterans hospital in San Francisco Saturday afternoon shortly before 5 o'clock. At his bedside were his wife, Mrs. Ella A. Englund, and his stepson, Walter Albright. Hundreds of Carmel citizens, who remember the long-time chief of police with a respect and affection rarely accorded to an officer of the law, paid their last respect to "Gus," as he was universally known, at the funeral held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at Paul's Mortuary in Pacific Grove. A military funeral was accorded the former soldier, veteran of the armies of Sweden and of the United States, with additional ceremoniay by the I. O. O. F. and the United Spanish War Veterans, of both of which he was a long-time member. The eulogy was given by Rev. Austin B. Chinn. Burial was in the family plot in Pacific Grove cemetary. Serving as pall-bearers were Leonard Johnson, Ben Wetzel, Robert Norton, Charles Guth, R. H. Cartwright and O. J. Lemon.

A long period of illness and surgical treatment had not sapped the courage, nor, it was thought, seriously impaired the physical vigor of the former police chief. On Dec. 18, last, began the search, continued for many weeks, for the body of Eliot Boke Schaffner, thought to have committed suicide by drowning in Carmel Bay. Heading the search was Police Chief Englund. Several days after the beginning of the search, he slipped on jaggegd rocks at the waterfront, received a foot injury ne-

RED CROSS TO BEGIN CANVASS ARMISTICE DAY

BEGINNING next Monday, Armistice Day, the annual Roll Call of American Red Cross will be launched throughout the nation.

In Carmel a volunteer campaign organization, composed of loyal men and women will conduct the Roll Call for Carmel chapter and endeavor to carry the invitation into every home to join Red Cross.

Headquarters will be established in Levinson's garage, corner Ocean avenue and San Carlos and here daily progress will be reported.

Carmel chapter is performing a double service in this community by not only carrying out the national program of Red Cross but carrying on a definite program of home relief, care of the unemployables, milk for undernourished babies and children, as well as supplying clothing to those in need. First aid classes are also in progress.

The budget this year for both programs has been placed at $3000 and it is hoped that the response of citizens will make the sum much larger as it can be judiciously utilized in carrying on the work of the chapter.

Sunday, Nov. 10, has been designated as Red Cross Sunday and the pastors of the various Carmel churches will conduct appropriate services in order to bring to the citizens the work of this great humanitarian cause.

Mayor James H. Thoburn has is-

Mayor Issues Red Cross Call

THE annual Roll Call of the American National Red Cross will be held from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving.

We of Carmel know the tremendous amount of good accomplished by this great humanitarian organization in aiding the veterans of our wars(in succoring the thousands left in distress by disasters, in providing safeguards through health and safety education, and in its great character-building program of the Junior Red Cross.

The civilian relief work of Carmel Chapter, Red Cross is recognized by city officials as a potent factor in meeting present needs, and as an agency fully equipped at all times to meet any possible emergency.

The special Red Cross projects—one for the establishment of First Aid stations on highways and the other for the prevention of accidents in homes and on farms—both with the objective of reducing the appalling loss of life—are deserving of the support of every individual in this or any other community.

The Red Cross inaugurates and maintains its several regular and special services for the benefit of humanity through annual memberships.

As Mayor of Carmel I, therefore, call upon former members of the Red Cross to renew thier memberships during the current Roll Call and urge any who, heretofore, have had no part in this noble work for mercy to enroll this year and help the cause.

Spread the word in your own circle. See that every individual receives an invitation to do his or her part.

(Signed) JAMES H. THOBURN,
Nov. 4, 1935. Mayor of Carmel.

City Ordinances Are Under Fire

Two city ordinances were under fire at the council meeting Wednesday evening, the fire ordinance and the business license ordinance, and revision of both was suggested. The former was discussed as result of a letter from Mary Potter Hooper, inquiring into the reason for the requirement that garage connected with the house must be plastered and the doors sheathed with metal. Mrs. Hooper had encountered this snag in connection with remodeling at her home on Casanova near Santa Lucia. In the belief that this requirement may be unnecessarily stringent, Fire Commissioner Rowntree was asked to investigate this and other provisions of the ordinance.

Application of the Yarn Shop for refund of a portion of its initial $100 deposit, a matter laid over since September, brought up again by a letter from Edna Deakin, again provoked discussion of this and other clauses of the business license ordinance. which

According to the terms of the ordinance, City Attorney Campbell declared, "Much as I should like to, I cannot advise you to make the refund to the Yarn Shop." The sum claimed is $92. A suggestion that the council repeal the portion of the ordinance requiring the $100 deposit, which is forfeited if the shop does not remain in business one year, was rejected as involving further complication. With statements by Mayor Thoburn, Councilman Catlin and Police Chief Norton that they do not favor the ordinance, the matter rested. Revision was discussed, but no definite action taken.

Dead Pine Tree Falls on Home

During the heavy wind of last week-end a dead pine tree fell abaft the roof-tree of the Joe Delmas house on San Carlos, without doing serious damage, but filling with alarm various householders who live under the shadow of other dead or shallow-rooted trees. Result was letters were read in council meeting Wednesday evening, requesting the removal of trees thought to constitute a menace. A survey was authorized, of trees on private as well as city land. It is possible by resolution to declare hazardous trees a nuisance and order property owners to abate them, City Attorney Argyll Campbell told the council.

Complaints were received from Genevieve S. Lynch and F. A. Wermuth, formally, and a number of other tree menaces were mentioned informally. Street Commissioner Burge and City Forester Everett Smith were also authorized to survey and recommend treatment for pines on Ocean avenue which have been attacked by borers.

Sheets Trial Aired In Council Chamber

Addressed to the city council at its meeting Wednesday evening was a protest from Anna Lucille Sheets against the manner in which Judge George Wood conducted her misdemeanor trial earlier in the week. City Attorney Argyll Campbell, who conducted the prosecution, asked the privilege of answering the letter, verbally before the council, and in writing to Mrs. Sheeets.

"I wish to state that Judge Wood's manner was fair and impartial," said the city attorney, "and in view of the fact that the law provides a maximum fine of $50 for the offense of which Mrs. Sheets was convicted, a fine of $15 appears moderate. The jury paid the fine, and I don't see that Mrs. Sheets has any just complaint."

Councilman Catlin also made a statement. "I dislike to hear officials only doing their duty so abused," he said, referring to statements of Mrs. Sheets, who, he said, visited him "many times" between the date of her arrest and the day of the trial. He added that Mrs. Sheets had referred to Judge Wood in "most immoderate terms" and had called the judge a liar.

cessitating treatment at Peninsula Community hospital, which he entered Dec. 26. His condition became so grave that it was thought advisable to remove him to the San Francisco hospital for surgery. He entered the bay city institution on Jan. 5. In an effort to stem the spreading infection, his left leg was amputated above the knee, in a series of operations, the last of which took place three days before his death. Gangrene set in, and the chief lapsed into a coma from which he was released only by death. Until the sudden change for the worse, he had believed that he would be able to return to his Carmel home in time to celebrate Christmas.

Mr. Englund was born in Sweden, Nov. 16, 1868, and prior to coming to the United States in 1892 had been a sergeant in the King's Dragoons. He enlisted in the Eighth Cavalry regiment and was stationed at Ft. Mead, N. D., until 1895, when he transferred to the Fourth Cavalry. He was in all the important engagements of the Spanish-American War and the Philippine Insurrection, receiving honorable discharge from the army in 1899. After a short tour of police duty in Yosemite, he saw service with the Quartermaster's Corps in China, and was later stationed with the Fifteenth Cavalry at Sequoia.

In 1902 he joined the Alaska gold rush, prospecting for a short time near Dawson and St. Michael. He first came to the peninsula in 1903, when he had a hand in establishing the Presidio at Monterey. During 1905 and 1906 he was a member of the Monterey police force but joined the Pinkerton detective service in San Francisco following the earthquake and fire, assisting in maintaining order in the stricken city. From 1911 to 1913 he was chief of police in Monterey, after which for a year and a half he was on special police duty in San Francisco, during the Exposition.

In 1916 began his long career in his Carmel office, as city marshal and tax collector, later chief of police. His martial bearing, straight as an arrow astride the black horse on which he patrolled the village streets made him a nationally known figure, and the decision in 1932 to dismount the chief had national repercussions. It was hailed as the passing of the old order, a break with village tradition. But Gus continued as before, enforcing the law and protecting the peace in his quiet, matter-of-fact manner, distinguishing his tenure of office with many quiet acts of kindness and neighborly consideration. He resigned his office Feb. 1, being succeeded by Robert Norton.

On June 20, 1905, Mr. Englund was married at Watsonville to Mrs. Ella Albright, who survives him, as do his step-son, Walter Albright of San Francisco, and two grandchildren, Harold and Glenn Albright. Mrs. Englund has been in constant attendance upon her husband, but after closing her apartment in San Francisco at the end of this week, she will return to reside in her Carmel home.

Townsend Club Enjoys Program

A fine program and a jolly social evening was enjoyed by the Townsend Club last Friday, their first big social evening in their new quarters at Manzanita Club. Charles Frank planned the program and acted as master of ceremonies. The first act was a dance number by 10 smal pupils of June Delight. Warren Knapp, aged 13, played an accordian solo. Songs with guitar accompaniment, "Utah Trail" and "Little Green Valley," were given by Helen Jewel, 12, and Dorothy Jewel, 10, and little Bobby Jewel, aged 6, sang "Old Faithful."

A vocal number was offered by Joe Kleg, and Frank Benny gave English impersonations. Bob Takiguchi, the Japanese singer, gave numbers accompanied at the piano by Frank Benny. As banjo solos, Charles Frank rendered Grieg's "To Spring" and variations on Haydn's "Silent Night."

Readings and impersonations were offered by Mrs. Blanche Smith. A mandolin, guitar and banjo trio consisting of Mrs. Hattie Pitcher, Carl Beach and Charles Frank played "Good Old Mountain Music," "Isle of Capri" and "Don't Sing Aloha."

Refreshments were served during the intermission, after which music for dancing was provided by Mr. Frank on his banjo, Mr. Wheatly, piano, and Mr. Hicks, drummer.

Mr. Frank will again be master of ceremonies at the Townsend Club party to be held the evening of Dec. 6.

Humor of "Ould Sod" In Filmarte Offering

Irish wit and humor, considered the sharpest that humanity has yet developed, are deftly caught in all their sparkle in RKO-Radio's picturization of Liam O'Flaherty's novel, "The Informer."

Though the story reflests the dark pathos of poverty, under the direction of John Ford humor of the richest sort wells up even when tragedy impends.

"The Informer" is thus a blend of life's fundamental contradictions — joy and sorrow—which are the lot of all men and women. And through this tale of life runs the story of a hopeless love directed by a fate which knows no pity.

Victor McLaglen, for whom the story might well have been written, is cast in the role of Gypo Nolan, the primitive Irishman whose life, a dramatic combination of fighting, laughing, and loving, forms the main theme of the picture. A strong supporting cast includes Margot Grahame, Heather Angel, Preston Foster, Wallace Ford and Una O'Connor.

The "Informer" will be at the Filmarte theater today and tomorrow.

Two New Books Discussed Before Woman's Club at Section Meeting

DISCUSSION of two new books was so intertwined as to create in itself a third art product at the meeting of the Woman's club book section Wednesday morning, when Mrs. H. S. Nye reviewed "Singing in the Wilderness" by Donald Culross Peattie, and "North to the Orient" by Anne Morrow Lindbergh. Superficially these would seem subjects so disparate that no common ingredient would be found, but as Mrs. Nye showed there are qualities of universal significance that give the two beautiful books a definite kinship. She found their fresh, poetic, hopeful quality a relief from the prevailing pessimism of modern writers, and sent her auditors away with a definite "lift," after her penetrating presentation of the qualities of greatness which both possess.

The lives of John and Lucy Audobon and Charles and Anne Lindbergh she found alike in constitution real "American idylls," she said. Both managed, in periods of great stress, one hundred years apart, "to live lives apart, to pursue the lines of their greatest interest, Audobon's wilderness, the forest primeval, the Lindberghs' that of the empyrean." Innocence of motive, singleness of purpose and the scientific attitude were other qualities in common of the Audobons and the Lindberghs.

Mrs. Nye briefly traced the factual material of the Audobon biography, to his life's "perfect flowering in the end." She dwelt with enjoyment on the literary quality of the Lindbergh book, finding in Anne Lindbergh a child-like simplicity of mind and nature, a whimsical humor, yet a deep grasp of the abstract, all overlaid with a definite poetic quality. Her description of darkness, fog, and of her own feminine fears, her deep and sympathetic understanding of people make this far more than a log of their air journeys.

During the business session which preceded the review it was decided to change the hour of meeting from 10 to 10:30. Mrs. I. N. Ford, the chairman, announced that at the meeting of Nov. 18, Miss Celia B. Seymour will give a reading of a play.

NEW DECORATIONS AT ART GALLERY ENHANCE BEAUTY OF MONTHLY EXHIBIT

CARMEL art gallery is open again after redecoration of the interior which meets with general approval. Draperies of monk's cloth give an impression of augmented display space, and the light-painted ceiling diffuses the light better. Happily, the new finishings appear concurrently with an unusually fine show, of larger pictures, well arranged. There is an effect of widened horizons and good craftsmanship which makes the November hanging one of the best of the year. Vigor and originality of execution are the impression gained by a quick look around, and this is augmented by more careful study of the paintinngs. The paintings number 29, and most of them are large enough to give an adequate idea of the artists' capacities.

No. 1 is "Garden" by Celia Seymour, a charming and decorative study of a gate at the head of a flower-bordered path. A green-brown hillside with a shallow cienega in the foreground is Homer Levinson's landscape, the happiest of his ventures from urban scenes at which he excels. Very much of the Monterey coast is Edward Fristrom's California farm ,the homely buildings sheltered under exotic eucalypti. A bright study of backyard data, a well-patterned arrangement of houses and trees, is Fristrom's second entry, "Houses."

John O'Shea has three canvasses, representing three distinct phases of his large gift; a pyramidal arrangement of strange-hued tropic fish; a mountain-desert composition "Superstition Mountains" in scalding color, and a flower study, a mixed bouquet fresh and glowing against a backdrop of clear green-yellow.

The finest painting Paul Whitman has yet shown at the gallery is his gnarled dead cypress looming black in the fog, dwarfing two slickered, sou'westered human figures.

Side by side are two magnificent marines, providing an interesting opportunity to compare two masters, Paul Dougherty and William Ritschel. The Dougherty is a restless green Pacific, breaking on the living rock he paints so well; Ritschel's is the sombre deep-blue Atlantic, with storm winds driving a great sailing ship and high-piled clouds. Another Dougherty, small but choice, is a Point Lobos scene.

The light and color of Southern France are in Charlton Fortune's "St. Tropez," a pattern of red roofs and sun-drenched white houses from an interesting angle. Damo Vuletich has one of his high-vibrating scenes from the Dalmatian coast.

Henrietta Shore's unusual and finely executed arrangement of cacti and succulents is the one that was pronounced by Oroszco "Monumental!" By Dorothy Wood is a painting of two white horses' heads, drawn with fidelity and understanding, and with scrupulously fine brushwork. Burton Boundey's 'Muskrat Hunters" has action, excellent design and a fine color pattern, and is one of his best canvases yet exhibited. "The Last Sentinel" by George Kotch is a Lobos cypress against turbulent water. James Fitzgerald shows one of the best marines he has executed.

Ida Maynard Curtis' entry shows the seclusion and tidy security of an informal garden against a background of mountain vastness. Leslie B. Wulff shows further data in her study of Californiana, an old building painted with fine feeling for its values, historic as well as artistic.

A marine in the modern manner is entered by Jennie Vennestrom Cannon. A somber, coppery storm light pervades Percy Gray's "Evening Storm," the figure of central interest a California oak painted as only he and a few others can paint them. There is more of turbulence and unrest in the scene than this painter of pastoral peace usually presents. Vastness and space are well suggested in Ferdinand Burgdorff's painting, "Desert Storm," with a design a bit too tidy and well-balanced. De Neale Morgan has a good composition of cypress and ocean. Magnificent depth is given to Charles Bradford Hudson's "Canyon," with a lovely play of light and color on its distant folds. Charlotte Morgan has an excellent study of San Francisco's Coit Tower. James Fitzgerald's portrait of Judge Kinsell is warmly executed, a significant study of character.

JAMES STEPHENS, NOTED AUTHOR, IS CARMEL VISITOR

By THELMA B. MILLER

RESTING in Carmel last week-end was James Stephens, not to be confused (as I did) with James Stevens, who wrote "Brawnyman," "Paul Bunyan" and "Mattock." This was Stephens, the Irishman, who wrote "Hill of Vision," "The Charwoman's Daughter," "Crock of Gold," "Demi-Gods," "Songs from the Clay," "Reincarnation," "Dierdre," "In the Land of Youth," "Etched in Moonlight," and numerous others.

Being told only "James Stephens is in town," with not whether he spelled his name with a "v" or a "p," I went down to Pine Inn expecting to see the American. It took me a little while to discover my own mistake, and Mr. Stephens never did discover it. I spoke with some enthusiasm of some of his stories I remembered vaguely from American Mercury about 10 years ago, and he with equal vagueness said oh, yes, he thought those were reprinted either in "Here are Ladies" or "Etched in Moonlight," but it was Stevens' stories I was talking about, and the man I was talking to was about 50 instead of about 40, and very Irish.

You could know he was a humorist, by his large, deep-set sad dark eyes and the deep lines drawn about his mouth, an expression of pessimism and suffering that arises from the effort of being funny. I asked him what he is writing now and he shuddered and looked ill, and murmured something about the impossibility of writing during one-night stands and on joggly railroad trains.

He is in the west on a lecture tour; slipped away from San Francisco so that he could go about for a few days with his shoes untied and his shirt-tail out; away from lecture crowds and tea-parties. What was he lecturing about? Again the expression of acute distaste: "My own works—anything. Someone gives me a word, and I'm off. Can't help it." And he proved it. Asked me about Jeffers, and gave me a fine lecture on Jeffers, bringing himself up to recall that he hadn't read any of his books, but must do so. How about Una Jeffers' lecture on Yeats, of which he had read in The Pine Cone? Did she really understand the man? Critics had fought shy of him, dreaded to evaluate him. How about this and that, he asked, did she tell you thus and so? And each question I answered in a proud affirmative, for Una Jeffers had told us all that and more. He nodded approval. "Good work, she really understands Yeats."

We talked about writers, a heterogeneous lot, from Jeffers to Dorothy Parker, Thornton Wilder, Edna Millay and Willa Cather. He thinks that a good woman writer is due to emerge, one expressing "the new pessimism," which he attributes to "the speakeasy age." But she will express it from the feminine viewpoint, and sound a new note in literature;—if he wasn't just having me on, being an Irish fantasist (is there any such word?) and humorist. I persist in thinking of him as a humorist, because there are patches of quiet humor in his writings, and there is also a disquieting blend of fantasy and grim realism. Some of his stories, set in Ireland in the pre-Christian age, make you think of the real stuff of which Cabell is an imitation.

It was he who wrote that short story which if you ever read you have not forgotten; about the man who saved another from death by an automobile and in reward was granted a wish. He wished to be to the end his present age, which was 48. That night his wife had a terrible dream of being in the Arctic wilds without sufficiently warm clothing. She awoke to find that the motif for her dream had been supplied by the icy coldness of her husband's dead body.

Stephens published his first works about 1909, after a youth of poverty and privation, whence probably came the inspiration for some of his bitterer things, like "Hunger," and then trained himself for office work, where he perhaps found the idea for "Darling."

Riding herd on their author here were C. R. Heck of the American Book Company, who looks like a business man, and Philip Maxwell, who looks like something in between a business man and a poet.

PACIFIC GROVE

IN one of the most cleverly arranged of the Hallowe'en settings, Bernard Bisnett was host to a group of his friends on Hallowe'en night. The more practical and plebian double garage was transformed into a witches' and goblins' den which was gruesome enough to satisfy even the most ghostly guests, who were all garbed in various disguises appropriate for the occasion. The "evil spirits" abroad in the Bisnett home were: Misses Raydeen Hawes, Patricia de Lorimier, Rebecca Hart, Marie May, Virginia Banta, Jeanne Baker, Helen Agard and Messrs. Bernard Bisnett, Bob Mumford, Gerald Moran, Jack Cook, Fred Fogg, Douglass Thompson, Warren Holt, Robert Elmore, Jack Irwin and Stanley Ansell.

Jury Finds Trash Burner Guilty and Then Pays Her Fine of $15

MRS. ANNA LOUISE SHEETS was found guilty of "wilfully and unlawfully maintaining a bonfire without a permit so to do" by a jury of her peers in the council chambers Tuesday morning, was fined $15 by Judge George Wood, who presided, and the jury and spectators chipped in to pay her fine, over her vehement protest that she would rather go to jail, the alternate sentence provided by the judge. This "typical Carmel" outcome to the trial which was the subject of village interest this week, embodied the feeling that while Mrs. Sheets was a little bit guilty, or at least indiscreet, in the manner which she chose to dispose of her garden clippings, it was a small matter after all, and the jury, gallant Carmelites all, preferred to pay her fine to compensate for the painful duty of finding her guilty.

City Attorney Argyll Campbell, no less gallant than the jurors, virtually conducted both prosecution and defense, leaning over backwards in his attempt to be scrupulously fair to the defendant who acted in her own defense. He indicated that the permit to maintain a bonfire, issued by Fire Chief Robert Leidig, and entered in evidence as Exhibit A, was not clear in its provisions, referring to a clause on burning in the public streets which was scratched off the permit as no longer permissible under terms of an ordinance against trash-dumping, passed after the permit form had been adopted.

The technical point involved was that Mrs. Sheets' fire continued burning after the hour of 12, noon, and that no permit covers burning save between the hours of 6 in the morning and noon. On the witness stand City Inspector B. W. Adams testified that he had visited Mrs. Sheets between 12:30 and 12:45 Sunday, Oct. 27, and warned her that the legal hour had passed for the fire which was burning in her driveway, but outside her property line. He stated that she added more fuel to the fire while he was talking to her; her contention was that she let fall an armful of garden clippings which she had in her hands at the time. Officer Charles Guth testified that he had visited Mrs. Sheets about 2 o'clock the same afternoon and asked her to extinguish the fire which was still burning. Police Chief Robert Norton testified to having seen the bonfire early Sunday afternoon, and Robert Leidig verified the permit as one he had issued.

Mrs. Sheets' refusal to heed the warning of the two officers was interpreted by the city attorney in his address to the jury as "interpreting ordinances to suit herself." He expressed his sympathy for the defendant and his hope that she would be leniently dealt with, but asked for a verdict of guilty.

Mrs. Sheets pleaded as extenuating circumstances that she is always careful of fire, that she had taken due precautions against possible spread of the fire by wetting the adjacent area, and that she believed it safer to allow the fire to die down of its own accord than to extinguish it as Officer Guth requested.

Spectators and participants retired from the improvised court room in order to allow the jury to deliberate as the city hall affords no jury room. Eugene A. H. Watson, who two weeks ago was the judge in "The Trial of Mary Dugan" at the Playhouse, found himself in the role of jury foreman. He announced the verdict, "Guilty, with recommendation of extreme clemency."

Before passing judgment, Judge Wood gave his opinion that "the defendant's attitude to the officers was not such as to inspire clemency; that she had shown no inclination to cooperate with them but had rather displayed an open hostility. This case could have been settled at the preliminary hearing," he added, without the expense and inconvenience of a jury trial. Under these circumstances" . . . he pronounced the sentence, a fine of $15, with a penalty of $1 or one day in jail for each day of delinquency, or seven days in jail. Mrs. Sheets selected the jail sentence, after which a spontaneous move was made to collect and pay her fine on the spot. A question from the jury elicited the information that the maximum penalty for the offense charged is $50. In a similar case last week, the defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $10.

On the jury, in addition to Foreman Watson, were: Robert W. Hicks, Robert C. Howes, Leta Murphy, Lawrence L. Benson, Alfred E. Sparks, Harry L. Clements, Ernest F. Morehouse, Mark A. Bullock, Neil Twilegar, Major William E. Kneass and John H. Neikirk. Challenge for cause and pre-emptory challenges resulted in dismissal of half a dozen of the panel of several dozen citizens, before a jury acceptable to both sides was selected. Among those dismissed were J. Weaver Kitchen, Maude Arndt, Helen Willard, John McKay, Carl Harris, Phil Wilson, Jr., and Jesse E. Bunch.

RIGHT TINTS ADD TO PLEASURE OF HOME

Color is a medium which reflects the individuality and preference of the home owner. The importance of rugged durability in "outside paint" gives way, in interiors, to the consideration of such hues and tints as will give the greatest pleasure to those who see them daily.

Harriet Smith Opens Voice Culture Class

Harriet Smith, now well known to Carmel, is giving a course in the speaking voice, limited to 15, which begins this week at Denny-Watrous Gallery. The course includes voice production, placement, diction, phonetic reading—in other words, a scientific approach to appearance on the stage. Two two-hour sessions a week will be held over a period of six weeks.

Harriet M. Smith is holder of a master of fine arts degree from Yale University where she had three years intensive theater training and made a study of all phases of drama in the famous Baker's Workshop, which has credited so many of the country's leading artists.

Miss Smith is also a graduate of the College of Pacific in Stockton where she had four years study under Director De Marcus Brown, head of the Pacific Little Theater. Since returning from the East, she has been a guest director at the Pacific Little Theater and worked at the Pasadena Community Playhouse. This summer she organized and directed the first summer stock company on the Pacific coast, the Pinon Players, who presented a season of 13 modern and classic dramas at the Carmel Playhouse here in Carmel, ten of which were under the personal direction of Miss Smith.

Miss Smith has been retained in Carmel by the Carmel Community Players, having directed "The Trial of Mary Dugan."

Carmel Legion Hears Speakers

James Thoburn was in charge of the program for the November meeting of Carmel American Legion post, held Monday evening at Legion-Manzanita hall. The speakers were Allen Griffin, who contrasted European forms of government with the democratic system of the United States, and Allen Charles, San Francisco attorney and chairman of the marine committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, who presented a factual and dispassionate report of the San Francisco waterfront situation.

For the membership committee, Commander Martin J. Peterson reported 50 members with dues paid, predicted a paid-up membership of 100 this year. James Regan reported adversely on the local sale of peace bonds, giving details of sponsoring groups. The post passed a resolution asking to be made the sponsoring group for one of the boy scout troops.

Plans were discussed for the open house which Carmel post will hold Saturday evening, Nov. 16, for visitors and friends attending the Second Area meeting that week-end, sponsored jointly by Monterey and Carmel posts.

Corum Jackson is in charge of the program for the December meeting.

Tropic Tales Told at Woman's Club Meeting

FROM the viewpoint of a casual traveler, to whom all is new and strange, and who therefore thinks of things to tell stay-at-homes which long-time residents would regard as commonplace, Mrs. Mary Post Miller entertained the Woman's club Monday afternoon with a witty and entertaining description of places with names to conjure with—New Zealand, Australia, Bali, Java, Siam, Cambodia. Tropic birds and spicy perfumes, exotic flowers and brown-skinned people, temple dances and jungle-choked ruins passed in review, and her auditors, too, had the sense of seeing things new and strange, things which travel-writers pass over as of too little import for comment, but the very things that the naive visitor would first remark.

Mrs. Miller commented on the vastness of the island-dotted Pacific, a sense of distance which no map-gazing gives. The trip which she described was not made on a luxury steamer, but represented many moderately short jumps, nights in an unlimited number and variety of beds.

She dealt briefly with New Zealand, finding particularly worthy of comment caves mystically lighted with thousands of "carnivorous" glow-worms, which dot the cavern walls and sides so thickly that the visitor has the sensation of floating through a starry firmament. With unerring instinct she chose the one detail, in Australia, apt to appeal to the greatest number of people, the darling Kuala bears which their keeper will allow you to hold and pet, and which fastidiously feed on one particular variety of eucalyptus, disdaining all others.

In Bali Mrs. Miller found it a relief to rest in the comparative comfort of electric fans, rather than worrying about the possible fatigue of punkah-boys. She described the refreshing bath of the tropic islands; instead of the steady, suffocation drum of a shower, dippersful of cool water with intervals for evaporation in between. She admired the handsome natives—or at least the young ones—thought their life uncomplicated and easy, with cock-fights and cremations their only occasions requiring expenditure of cash. She gave tantalizing descriptions of strange tropic fruits, described the growth and preparation of articles with which her hearers were acquainted only in packages and tins—tapioca, citronella, tea and spices.

Showing some good pieces of batik she described the process by which these interesting prints are made. The cotton material is boiled in castor oil, then put through a series of dye baths, the pattern being formed by waxing every spot where the particular color is not wanted. Other exhibits were an uncannily responsive puppet, one of the traditional figures of the Balinese puppet drama, and one of the masks used in dancing.

A social hour followed the talk, with tea served under the direction of Mrs. W. E. Heathrone, hospitality chairman. Mrs. H. S. Nye presided at the short business meeting preceding the program, and Mrs. James K. Lynch introduced the speaker.

African Missionary Writes Home

REV. and Mrs. John Hunter of Pacific Grove have a daughter, Mary, who is a missionary to Africa. Miss Mary Hunter visited her mother and father this summer while she was home on a furlough and she is now in Elat, Ebolowa, Cameroun, West Africa. Following are excerpts from a letter which the Hunters received from their daughter recently:

"Here I am at Elat and three weeks of school have already passed, and very happily too.

"There are 11 children in school. Two are beginners, Lois Kay Harris and Charles Grissett. Two have been to school in America and are high first, Margaret Newhouse and Doris Ellyn. Doris is far ahead of Margaret, however, so it makes two classes. Then Lois E. Neely had a year at home with her mother, so she is really ready for second grade. That makes five new ones to the school and dormitory and they have all adjusted themselves very nicely. Among the old ones are John Grissett and Jack Neely in fourth grade, Martha Wolfe and Donald May in fifth and Jean Wolfe and Miriam Neely in a sort of sixth-seventh grade combined. Their families expect them to go into eighth grade next year in America.

"I am living all alone in the house Lucy and Esther had, just as I had planned. My loads from Efulan came last Saturday and today I finished arranging as many things as I have here. My freight from San Francisco will not arrive in Kribi until next week. I am going to borrow dishes and cooking utensils from Mrs. Love as it is a nuisance to bring over a barrel from Efulan in the rainy season and I hope to be returning there by April at the latest.

"The Loves are so nice and make one feel very much at home. Just now Mr. Love is off on a three weeks' motor trip, so we are alone. She has a motor bike, a woman's bicycle with a motor on it that runs on one-half gas and one-half kerosene. You can go about 80 or 90 miles on one gallon. The cost of the thing delivered here is about $150. They buy them from Halbrock in Germany where we buy many things. I have learned to run it about the station and use it when I go to choir practice. I am now just dying for a similar motor and I wish folks who gave me money would have said whether it must be used for definitely native work.

"I am going to try to send this air mail, via Cotonou, so be sure and let me know how long it takes. This is mail week again, that is Monday; we ought to get some, so I'll be hoping."

MARTIN FLAVIN INTERVIEWED BY NEW YORK DRAMATIC CRITIC

THE following, on Martin Flavin and his ill-starred "Achilles Had a Heel" is from Ward Morsehouse's column, "Broadway After Dark" in the New York Sun:

Martin Flavin, brusque, blunt and terse, paced the living room of his suite at the Wyndham. His "Achilles Had a Heel" had just closed, rather violently, and the detonation was still ringing in his ears. He was vastly disappointed but he wasn't bitter. He was matter-of-fact and interestingly articulate. He tossed off a Martini and came to the point:

"Quite a flop, wasn't it? . . . I'm talking about 'Achilles.' Well, I liked it and Walter Hampden liked it and the critics didn't. Don't ask me for the details—you should know them. The play opened on Sunday night, Oct. 13, to what seemed to us to be an interested and appreciative audience. It was greeted on Monday by a blast from the press so unanimously withering that I am still a little dazed. We closed after eight performances."

Mr. Flavin, 51, graying and San Francisco born, went on:

"Yes, 'Achilles' cost Walter Hampden $35,000, and he took it like a sport. What a swell guy Hampden is. He's one of the grandest human beings I've ever known and the association was the happiest of my theater experience."

"I've been looking into your record," I said, "and I find that you've had seven New York productions—".

"That's right," he said. "I've written 20 plays—all but four were produced."

The New York record? "Children of the Moon," "The Criminal Code," "Broken Dishes," "Cross Roads," "Lady of the Rose," "Service for Two" and "Achilles Had a Heel." And No. 8, a piece called "Tapestry in Gray," now being cast, will be brought forth in December by Lodewick Vroom. I reminded the restless Mr. Flavin that he had enjoyed a distinction that comes to few playwrights—three plays running on Broadway simultaneously. They were "The Criminal Code," "Cross Roads" and "Broken Dishes."

"Yes," he said, "that was fun. But Clyde Fitch once had five or six, didn't he? And how about Avery Hopwood and George Kaufman? . . . Bill Harris gave 'Code' a beautiful production . . . I'll never forget that swell cast in 'Cross Roads'—Sylvia Sidney, Franchot Tone, Mary Morris, Irene Purcell, Peggy Shannon, Dennie Moore. Guess the play didn't deserve it. Never will forget Franchot Tone the opening night. He didn't have fame then, and he was a shy boy but a fine actor. He was in tears just about curtain time because his mother had come all the way from Buffalo and the manager wouldn't give him a pair of seats. 'Broken Dishes' and 'The Criminal Code' had longest runs. 'Broken Dishes' made the most money. It's gone great in the amateur field and is still being played in the English provinces, of all places . . . Bette Davis worked for me in 'Broken Dishes.' She's gone ahead, they tell me."

"Understand," I said, "that you were once in the wall paper business."

"I don't suppose," he said, "that I'll ever live that down. Yes, I was in it, and I still have an interest in it, and I wish I hadn't. . . . Playwriting? I dunno. Once worked in the business office of the Chicago Tribune, wrote short stories and sold a few to Street & Smith. Got $90 for my first two. . . . 'Criminal Code' took only five weeks to write. This new one, 'Tapestry in Gray,' took me a good while, and I think it's the best thing I ever did, but I may be all wrong again. Gee—" he was chuckling and still pacing—"those fellows were certainly in agreement about 'Achilles.' But I have no kick—it was the only bad press I ever had."

I reminded him that his plays, "Children of the Moon" and "The Criminal Code" won raves from the reviewers. . . "Children of the Moon." Remember the glowing performance of Florence Johns? . . . And "The Criminal Code?" . . . Arthur Byron, so fine and believable and human as the warden.

Martin Flavin, business man turned dramatist, made money in wall paper and he's made money as a dramatist. He works swiftly and hopes to write dozens of plays. He is married, has two sons and a daughter. His home at Carmel is one of the show places of the Pacific. When he and Mrs. Flavin occupied Colleen Moore's enormous house in Bel-Air they entertained all of Hollywood. Besides the ocean-front house at Carmel they have a 1300-acre ranch at the headwaters of the Carmel river. Carmel, to the Flavins, is a breathless place—"the only place we want to stay, to live."

Mr. Flavin's plans? He'll stay right here until "Tapestry in Gray" is produced. After that he'll probably go to China. He's always wanted to go, but never got around to it.

U. S. Colleges Only Make Dancing Subject

Almost all American colleges have now established dancing as a regular part of their curricula, and in that regard the United States is unique in the world, according to Elizabeth Selden, internationally known student of the dance, whose new book, "The Dancer's Quest," has just been published by the University of California Press.

Miss Selden points out that in other ways, also, America has made valuable contributions to the progress of dancing in modern times, but that despite this there has not yet developed a modern dance of distinctly American character. She believes that university dancing groups could play an important role in overcoming this deficiency.

In her book she points out the responsibilities and opportunities of the colleges in developing a dance of distinctly American character, and explains the necessity of establishing the dance as an independent art similar to music and dramatics.

New Chevrolet Cars for 1936 Are Transformed as to Body Lines

COMPLETELY new bodies and overall appearance in all standard models, and a strikingly revised styling of the Master deluxe models, transform both lines of Chevrolets for 1936, as revealed at their showing at the Poklen Chevrolet Company of Carmel.

Except for size, and details of exterior and interior trim, the new lines are virtually identical.

Smoothness is the keynote of the changed aspect of both Chevrolets. The rounded contours, characteristic of the solid steel turret top roof, which is used this year in the Standard for the first time, prevail throughout the cars. In fact, the only flat surfaces are the plate glass of windshields and windows.

Fenders are gracefully curved, sweeping from lown down in front of the wheels and swelling in deeply molded form to enclose the wheels and flare off in carefully streamlined curves. All vestiges of straight lines and plain surfaces are gone from the radiator grille, which is bowed back from its center line toward each side, and likewise is curved from top to bottom. Its upper edge flows smoothly into the surface of the radiator shell and hood. Headlamps are longer and more slender, and are mounted on streamlined brackets projecting from the sides of the radiator shell.

The grille is located higher in the radiator shell and is narrower, being 2½ inches less in width at the top than in the previous Master deluxe model, and 3½ inches less at the bottom. This new design creates the appearance of a higher and narrower radiator, which is enhanced by a novel treatment of the chromium-plated grille bars. The wide center bar, of shallow V-section, curves over the crest of the radiator shell and sweeps on back over the top of the hood as far as the cowl. The other bars of the grille are graduated in width, becoming narrower toward the sides, the effect being to highlight the central area of the grille in greater brilliance than the flanks. No hand crank hole is visible, for it is concealed by a short removable section of the center bar. Two hood louvres are used.

Interiors show not only a general improvement over previous models of both Master and Standard lines, but many innovations in American practice. In the Master, departures from the ordinary are to be seen in the design of seat cushions. In the rear of all 5-passenger cars, the front of the seat cushion extends all the way to the floor. In the two-door models—the coach, and the town sedan with built-in trunk—the front seat, instead of being divided into two separate seats, is one full width cushion, accommodating three passengers, as in the four-door models.

Upholstery material is opional—closely woven mohair or flat cloth, both in a lighter gray than was formerly used.

EARLY AMERICAN CURIOS SHOWING AT WHATNOT

The connoisseur, collector, and utilitarian alike will find the collection of early American silverware and pressed glassware being shown at the Whatnot, of unusual interest.

The connoisseur and collector will find them interesting from a historical viewpoint, the utilitarian will find it fascinating to see how many new uses can be found for old pieces which still hold the old-time charm. For example the old pressed glass cake stands may be inverted to make a double vase for a centerpiece or table ornament.

The entire collection is of unusual and rare pieces, and the public is especially invited to view them during the coming pre-holiday week.

The Whatnot is on the corner of Lincoln and 7th, opposite Hotel La Ribera. (Advt.)

P. G. and E. REDUCES ELECTRIC RATES

New low rates will apply on electricity used in the home and for commercial lighting throughout P. G. & E. system. Over 690,000 customers will benefit by this saving of nearly $4,000,000 a year, beginning with January bills.

CHEAPER ELECTRICITY
Reduced electric rates mean just one thing—cheaper electricity. To each individual home in the P. G. and E. system and to all commercial lighting customers that means more comforts and conveniences from electricity at no additional cost.

APPLIES TO JANUARY BILLS
The reduced electric rates take effect automatically and apply on January bills to all domestic users and to all commercial lighting customers.

WHY this reduced electric rate?
This substantial saving to our customers of nearly $4,000,000 has been long under consideration and we have been planning carefully for it. We feel now we can justify it on the following four points of good business. These four points are:

1. Increased demand for electricity stimulated in part by the special inducement rate of the past year and in part by better business conditions.
2. Lowered financing costs brought about by reducing interest charges of a large part of the company's bonded debt with 4 per cent bonds.
3. Reduced management and operating costs which were lowered through the consolidation of several properties.
4. By economies put in effect in every department.

Take advantage of the new low electric rates. Do more electrically, now that all types of electric equipment for the home will cost less to use.

Electric Rates Cut again and again and AGAIN!
Electric rates have dropped steadily and consistently in the P. G. and E. system.
In 1928 . . . rates were reduced by $2,418,900 yearly.
Again in 1930 . . . rates dropped by $3,020,000 yearly.
Again in 1935 . . . an inducement rate is saving customers $1,600,000 in one year.
NOW AGAIN in 1935-36 reduced rates save $3,924,000 yearly. In only eight years accumulated rate reductions have amounted to $54,621,000.
Electricity IS cheaper in California, with P. G. & E. electric rates among the lowest in the country

Gallery Outlines November Events

Attractions at the Denny-Watrous Gallery this month show great variety and the unvarying standard of excellence.

First already described, is tomorrow evening's illustrated lecture by Dr. Austin Phelps, of Hopkins Marine Laboratory, on the subject "From Mineral to Mineral, on Land and in the Sea."

Following, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 19, comes Virginia Stewart, with dance movies of Mary Wigman, and a discussion of the art of the modern dance and its ideals as embraced in Mary Wigman, Kreutzberg, Martha Graham, etc., Virginia Stewart has been in close connection with Mary Wigman for a number of years. She has just completed a book which has been published by Weyhe in New York City, which brings together the greatest dancers of the new school of modern dance in Germany and America.

Miss Stewart visited Kreutzberg in Salzburg during the festival, and visited Mary Wigman in her summer cottage in the Bavarian Alps. She speaks at the Cornish school, and for the Pataky school of the dance in San Francisco.

In delightful contrast, on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 23, comes the Norwegian singing choir of San Francisco, with 40 men's voices, all Norwegians, directed by Fritjof Turnquist. For 32 years the sons of Norway have maintained the Norwegian Singing Society of San Francisco, singing the songs of their homeland and preserving the culture of their northern race. The Denny-Watrous Gallery will present the stalwart group, with nine first tenors, eight second tenors, 15 first basses, and 14 second basses, on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 24.

At the end of the month, Nov. 30, comes the inimitable Gladys Steele (Mrs. Irving Gundersen), who will give an evening of delightful entertainment, singing her character songs as only she can. Songs of cowboys, songs of comedy collected from here and there, given in a natural, lyric soprano with a charm that is very rare. Gladys Steele sings on Saturday, Nov. 30.

E. C. Hopkins Speaks at Musical Art Club

Edward C. Hopkins was the speaker at the monthly meeting of the Musical Art Club held Tuesday evening at the Van Ess-MacGowan home in the country club. His talk dealt with the technical points of performance on the piano, explaining what goes on in his studio during a piano lesson, amplifying with illustrative passages on the piano from works of Beethoven, Moszkowski, Chopin and Schumann.

The assisting artist was Miss Beatrice Harris, who sang "Intorno al 'Idol Mio'" by Cesti; "Vicino" by Rosa and "A fors e lui" (Verdi) as an opening group. At the close of the program, following a Beethoven rondo and Rubenstein Etude played by Mr. Hopkins as piano solos, Miss Harris sang "Benediction" (Clara Edwards) and "Robin, Robin, Sing Me a Song."

S. E. Snider Opens New Finance Office

S. E. Snider, who has been connected with the automotive business on the peninsula for many years, today announced the opening of a new finance and loan office at 559 Tyler street, Monterey.

Snider once headed the Snider Chevrolet Company which had the Chevrolet dealership for the entire Monterey Peninsula. Ill health forced his retirement about two years ago, and he spent some time in the north and in the southeast.

He then returned to Monterey to live and soon after suffered a serious back injury in a fall from a horse. He is now in excellent health.

His new office will finance new car purchases at lowest rates, and will make loans on automobiles, furniture, radios, etc. He will also finance private sales, and all services are at minimum charge, he states.

Tau Mu Sorority to Present Program

As its big autumn event, proceeds of which are used for charity, Tau Mu sorority is presenting at 8 o'clock the evening of Friday, Nov. 15, in the lounge at Del Monte, "Las Tapatias," a program of folk songs and dances of Mexico. The entertainers are three charming sisters, Elena, Berta and Clotilde Lindeman, who will be remembered in Carmel for the enthusiastically received program which they gave here three seasons ago. In Carmel, tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Harry Raine or Mrs. William Gleeson.

Life Below Sea Lecture Topic

The other day a young Stanford student was in Carmel seeking material for a thesis which included people of importance on the Monterey peninsula. Not so many know of the world-reaching importance of the scientific research that is very quietly going on in the Hopkins Marine Station located on China Point in Pacific Grove.

Among the brilliant research associates who have come from far points to carry on their experiments and under whom students come to get their doctorates, is Dr. Austin Phelps, zoologist.

The Denny-Watrous Gallery has secured Dr. Phelps for an illustrated lecture tomorrow evening with the intriguing title, "From Mineral to Mineral on Land and in the Sea." The fascinating subject of oceanography has attracted many a layman, and Dr. Phelps promises to tell the story of nutrition in the ocean. Starting with the cow in the pasture he will sketch the life cycle of its nutrition and show how amazingly similar are conditions under the sea. . . . The role of the bacteria, the description of how water samples are secured, one-half mile under the sea at China Point, the dramatic story of life feeding on life, this and much more Dr. Phelps will tell. The talk will be illustrated by opaque projections.

Tomorrow evening's lecture will be interesting to high school student, business man, scientist and layman alike. The admission is no more than that of a movie.

OLD FOGEY'S HALLOWE'EN

Vigilance of a police department augmented a couple of hundred per cent resulted in a tame Hallowe'en here, and a minimum of damage. The officers interfered with the young folks' fun by sequestering them in the firehouse and letting them out one by one at a late hour. It is too bad that the reserves have to be called out on Hallowe'en, but the truth of the matter is that the youngsters today do not understand the traditions of the day, and that is our fault. As we look back to our own youth—a sure sign of decadence—we recall a vastly different way of celebrating the occasion than is current today. Not sissy parties, those were held before or after, but not on the evening itself. No, we were all out on a tear, and the village constable went home and took off his shoes and rested his feet in the oven.

Soaping windows had not yet "come in." The favorite trick was to creep, stifling whispers and giggles, to someone's front door, deliver a sharp rap, and run. Tick-tack-toe on the window and sticking pins in doorbells was thought rather wicked and the better children did not do these things. We trotted off with flowerpots and porch furniture and washtubs, but we did not destroy them. We left them where the owners could retrieve them, after a little search.

We did not break and tear things, but we indulged in a great deal of innocent mischief to which only the worst of the cranks objected. We lifted gates from their hinges and placed them on a neighbor's porch—we did not smash them to kindling wood or tear down fences. We represented innocent witches and goblins, who delighted in placing objects in grotesque locations. Even the biggest, roughest boys did no real damage; they might put a cow in the church belfry or a wagon on top of a barn, the labor in getting them down only being exceeded by the labor of getting them up there.

There was a sort of jovial excitement in the morning after Hallowe'en, as householders roved around collecting missing articles and swapping anecdotes. They were sure of finding the things they sought, and finding them undamaged, and the whole village looked forward to comparing notes on the wild pranks of the evening.

We remember one Hallowe'en when a band of youngsters, of whom we were one, had a perfectly swell time with an old wagon which someone had left unguarded. It was a crisp night with a great full moon. The boys pulled and pushed the wagon and the girls rode in it. We had so much fun we completely forgot we were out on mischief. We left the wagon in a conspicuous place in the school yard, where the owner could easily find it, and went home, satisfied and happy. We are afraid that today's children would have ended the evening by taking an ax to the wagon.

THE MODERN NOAH

The air is laden with politics these days, crowding the radio waves and filling many columns of print in a bewildering maze of cross currents that might easily leave the average man in a state of complete befuddlement, if he is not extremely cautious.

It is not an easy matter to sift from this mass the information that is correct. By keeping his eyes open and his wits on guard against trickery, by weighing the sources of his information, the average voter can cast a ballot that will in itself justify the institution of democracy.

TO THE GOLDEN SINGER OF THE FALL

Here where the quivering ash conceals the ember
Summer has burned her sacrifice of leaves;
And through the rising incense of November
Gentle as memory comes a song that grieves.

Yet in the garden where the gold light falling
Lifts into loveliness the last few flowers,
Can it be grief that in thy clear voice calling
Singeth of heaven through the leafless hours?

—DORA HAGEMEYER.

MASTER ORGANIST

God is the greatest organist of all
Who ever play that king of instruments.
His varied, brilliant music must enthrall
The ghostly throngs beyond the firmaments.
A true comparison can not be made
Between the console named the Universe
As played by God and those whose keys are played
By Man who labors under Cain's dire curse.
The passions found within the human race
Are this fine organ's pipes. The Organist
Obtains unique effects in every case
By letting humor add its novel twist.
When God has tired of playing then the world
Into its fiery finale will be whirled!

POPLAR

When the wind goes by you tell a soulful story, trembling in your eagerness, as if you knew the limit of your vanishing years, and feared the woodsman's axe before you finish.

—CHARLES BALLARD.

Here's Looking at You

By LOIS COLLINS PALMER

ONE regards the old Carmel houses of redwood boards and bats with new respect, learning that to duplicate them today costs more than to build a "modern" stucco house. As a matter of fact they cannot be duplicated, for lumber is no longer milled in the way it was 25 or 30 years ago, and lumber of that quality no longer seems to be available. It has a heavy, substantial look, and some of those old houses, even the ones built on mud-sills and therefore suspected of harboring termites and other horrors have an everlasting quality like that of the redwood trees from which they spring. There is a controversy about the termites, too, as some people say termites cannot be persuaded to chew redwood, and others say that the old redwood is riddled by them.

You would think, wouldn't you, that the cheapest house you could build in Carmel would be boards and bats. But builders tell you that all-wooden houses are practically in the luxury class, if the lumber is of any quality at all. Plaster, it seems, including the labor of spreading it, is cheaper. And hardwood floors are cheaper than the old-fashioned pine ones, provided you use the "number 2 common" which is preferred here because of its attractive irregular grain, and is pronounced just as durable as the number 1.

It is always interesting to go into the oldest houses here. The redwood walls and heavy beamed ceilings accumulate atmosphere along with the smoke of open fireplaces. Some of them exude warmth and happiness, others are acrawl with unnamed horrors. You could imagine that murder had been committed in them, or something worse than murder, as Hugh Nelson commented when I asked him if he felt the same way about them.

I slept with a book of charming fantasy under my pillow the other night, to see if it would bring pleasant dreams. Why not a book as well as a piece of wedding cake? But the only results were a pain in the neck and a slight headache. Realism triumphs over the land of dreams.

ARMISTICE DAY

On the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month of 1918, a khaki-clad officer stood watching his watch near a muddy trench on the war-scarred fields of France. His battery's guns were raining a barrage of shell-fire on the fleeing enemy. As the second-hand of his wrist watch ticked through the last long minute he stiffened, then raised his arm and gave the command.

"Cease firing!"

It was over! The war to end wars had ended!

Jubilation came even to those war-weary men in the trench. It mounted into a wave of feverish joy that swept 'round the world. All the noise and spirit of rejoicing, then and when the boys came home, was a full-throated cry of victory to almost every American.

But not everyone heard it that way. There were some to whom the joyous din was a hollow, futile sound that could not bring back to them what they had lost. They were the mothers, the wives and families of the 37,568 young men who had been killed in action, of the 12,942 who had died of their wounds, and of the 182,674 who had come home maimed, disabled.

Monday, the world will observe the anniversary of this fateful hour. It will be Armistice Day.

We know, now, that the World War was not a war to end wars. We know this was merely the idle dream of the idealists, or the deathly slogan of those who thought they would gain from the war. Today we know that one big power is already fighting again, and that Europe is on the brink of another plunge into mass madness. The United States should remember the events leading up to that fateful day in November 1918 and turn a deaf ear to the war lords.

HEARST AND TAXES

An old newspaper man living in Carmel Highlands remarked the other day that Hearst's threat to leave California on account of the income tax was the first good reason he had heard for high taxes. Of course in order to escape the income tax Mr. Hearst will have to "put to bed" or sell his newspapers and dispose of his other enormous holdings, and that will be just dandy. It will mean a new era in newspaperdom in California for one thing; an opportunity for new men in the field, and the possibility of more enlightened editorial policies. And San Simeon will make magnificent residential sites. New fortunes to be made, if any of the old octopi are actually shaken loose from their hold. Make a million dollars a year, give $900,000 to the government, and still have $100,000 left to spend. Whee!

WAR PROFITS TEMPT US

To keep America out of the next European war, now regarded as inevitable, it will take a lot more than just a desire to do good for humanity.

America could make huge profits by insisting on trading with belligerants. But such insistence would drag us in. It will be a tough job to pass these profits by. Merely a passive conviction that war is wrong will not suffice.

What America must keep in mind is that these profits are not profits actually, but are simply the enticing decoys that would lead us to bankruptcy, depresssion, and a repetition of the whole sorry mess we are just now climbing out of.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

ONE of the Pine Cone's columnists, Peggy Palmer of "The Matoor Mind," whose humorous articles with her own clever illustrations were a feature of this paper some years ago, is having an exhibition of paintings in Chicago now. The Chicago Tribune says of the show:

"An extremely gay and amusing little exhibit is that of water colors by Peggy Palmer in the O'Brien galleries, 673 North Michigan avenue. Miss Palmer has an admirable wit and a swift method of getting the better of even the most serious subject with a childlike nonchalance that is charming. The queen of Sheba has before now been grist for her mill and in the current show crowned heads spill their dignity all over the place.

Miss Palmer makes gentle fun of Queen Victoria and of Henry VIII, and of various other historical characters to whom the grave has long since given peace but not oblivion.

"Literary lights also are goals for the painter's whimsical malice. Louisa M. Alcott, George Sand, Charlotte Bronte, a group of women writers find themselves brought to life with a chuckle. If one were to complain of the portraits it might be hinted that there is a little too much of the Irish in each face and a constant rounded nose that after, say a dozen meetings, begins to pall.

Peggy Palmer does children's studies immensely well and her little girl polo player, the little girl gardener, and the pianist are fascinating. The Mona Lisa is not entirely successful but the Mother and Child is too much so. It is Sunday school in doggerel and, possibly, not to be applauded, for fear that Miss Palmer may turn the whole Bible into farce. Still, it is funny."

TUESDAY last, "Jimmy" Mason failed to become mayor of San Francisco by a hundred thousand votes or so, but made a valiant fight nonetheless. He was the nominee of the Union Labor ticket, and was defeated by Angelo Rossi and one or two other candidates.

James Redfern Mason is one of Carmel's "old-timers," having his initial performance at the Forest Theater in the summer of 1911, when he played a magnificent White Knight in the production of "Alice in Wonderland." Journalist, music and dramatic critic, Mason lived in Carmel for a number of years, working upon eastern newspapers, finally going to San Francisco as the Examiner's leading musical critic. In the organization of newspaper men into unions, Redfern Mason took a leading place and became the candidate of labor for the mayoralty of San Francisco. He visits Carmel frequently, where he has many friends.

LESTER DONAHUE, who has played three concerts here, one on the John Hayes Hammond tonal-pedal piano, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Fish this week. He has just returned to California after two years in the east, concertizing successfully. Just installed in his Los Angeles home is a small Chickering model of the tonal-pedal, gift of Inventor Hammond.

ANOTHER musical visitor this week was George Ficke, whom many Carmelites knew when he was here for a year studying with Frank Wickman. He reports a good contract with a Southern California broadcasting station, and he is playing jazz, of all things.

Food Sale Will Bring Yule Cheer

The response of the public to the food sale held by the Negro Civic Club in the showrooms of the Carmel garage is greatly appreciated by every member of the club, and particularly by Mrs. Ada Henderson, chairman of the group.

Once again the sale was a complete success and a sell-out despite the fact that nearly twice as much food was prepared as for any previous sale.

The proceeds of the sale will be used to spread cheer among the needy colored people during the Christmas season.

The Negro Civic Club was organized in May, 1934 and has done excellent work in aiding the sick and needy. It has financed many benefits exclusively through its own group or through food sales and other social entertainments. Motto of the club is "to assume all the duties of responsible citizens, to make the peninsula a better place in which to live, and to make the colored people of the community an asset instead of a burden."

Gay Musical Rich In Robust Comedy

There are many robust comedy angles that keep audiences in a cheerful mood, offered by the racy action of "My Heart Is Calling," starring the famous tenor, Jan Kiepura, which is playing at the Filmarte Theatre Wednesday and Thursday next. Sonnie Hale, premier favorite of the English music hall stage, figures prominently in most of the funny spots of the GB musical comedy romance.

H. S. Crossman Re-elected Head Boy Scout Executive Committee

THE annual election of officers of the Boy Scout executive committee, held at the monthly meeting Wednesday noon, resulted in H. S. Crossman being re-elected chairman, Jack Schroeder, secretary; and Louis Levinson, commissioner. The following chairman of district committees were selected: O. W. Bardarson, court of honor; Everett Smith, camping; J. Weaver Kitchen, civic service; Charles E. Berkey, finance; Melvin C. Dorsett, training; James Regan, organization; John Neikirk, health and safety; Patrick Hudgins, cubbing; Herbert Brownell, senior scouting; Byington Ford, publicity; Jack Schroeder, reading program.

Application of the American Legion post to sponsor one troop was accepted, and Troop 86 was assigned to them. The troop committee includes Byington Ford, ex-officio chairman; J. Weaver Kitchen, Lee Gottfried, Herbert Brownell, Major Warren J. Clear, Col. C. G. Lawrence, and Gen. Daniel W. Hand. Sponsoring Troop 39 is a committee including Melvin C. Dorsett, chairman, Everett Smith, Louis Levinson, Jack Schroeder, John Neikirk and James Regan. The committee for the cub pack includes Patrick Hudgins, chairman, O. W. Bardarson, B. F. Dixon, Father Michael D. O'Connell, Rev. Austin B. Chinn, Walter Gaddum and H. S. Crossman.

Sponsoring Sea Scout Ship No. 86 are Commander M. J. Peterson, chairman, Col. R. R. Wallace, Capt. Gleason, Capt. Leonard Johnson, D. L. Staniford and Robert Doolittle.

A training course for Scout leaders and others interested will begin the evening of Nov. 13, and for cub leaders, Nov. 18. The Court of Honor will be held the evening of Nov. 22.

Ernst Bacon WPA Musical Director

Ernst Bacon has been appointed San Francisco director of the musical division of WPA activities, it was learned here when Mr. Bacon was unable to be here to conduct the fortnightly rehearsals of the community orchestra and chorus. After organization of his new duties is complete, however, he will continue as before to direct the two local musical organizations. Among his new duties will be conducting an orchestra to be organized in San Francisco under WPA, and numerous other music projects will be in his charge.

Robert Nagler and Winifred Howe conducted the orchestra rehearsal by turns, and Miss Howe conducted the chorus rehearsal on the following night.

Bacon's appointment came directly from Nicolai Sokoloff, the celebrated conductor, who is WPA director of musical activities for the entire country.

Unemployment Causes and Cures Topics of Current Events Forum

UNEMPLOYMENT, its history, causes and suggested panaceas were discussed at the weekly current events forum at Sunset school Monday evening, with Dr. F. W. Haasis presiding as chairman, 33 men and women attending, and four speakers presenting material which was further discussed in the question period.

Outlining the history of unemployment, B. W. Adams quoted some terrifying statistics to the effect that "if and when the depression is over, technological improvements will result in millions being permanently unemployed. Although production is now estimated at 90 per cent of the 1929 level, employment is only 60 per cent, indicating that 30 per cent fewer workers are needed for production comparable to that of 1929." Technological unemployment began, he said, as long ago as 1529, in Danzig, when a multiple loom was invented which threw 49 of every 50 ribbon weavers out of employment. The inventor was hanged and the loom was destroyed, but that did not stay the march of progress.

As typical of relief measures, William Bensberg, director of the SERA men's camp in Carmel Valley gave a few facts from his own experience. With an average in camp of 125 to 150 men, rehabilitation of these "well-meaning citizens" has helped 287 to find private employment since last April, he said. During the past 10 months, 296,000 men have passed through California's camps, at a total cost of 43 cents per man per day. He read a typical menu for one day at his camp, where the men are fed for 25 cents per man per day, and miraculously well fed, the menu indicated. The local camp is one of the few which will be continued under WPA, the director said. "These men are not bums, and never were," said Mr. Bensberg, by way of inducing a more tolerant attitude toward these unvoluntary public charges, who lost their economic grip through no fault of their own.

Of the numerous suggested panaceas for unemployment, Robert Hart of Pacific Grove discussed the Townsend plan. He echoed some of Mr. Adams' figures on technological unemployment, quoted President Roosevelt as saying that provision will have to be made permanently for some 10,000,000 unemployed. This, he said, coincides with Dr. Townsend's figures on the number of old people who would be eligible for his proposed $200 monthly pension. It is better, he argued, to put ample purchasing power into the hands of the retired oldsters, whose monthly spending would create a job for a younger man, than to keep active young producers on inadequate relief.

Miss Clara Kellogg discussed Social Credit. "Man, through the ages, has been trying to achieve unemployment. Now we have it, and it's a burden. What's the answer?" The answer, she said, is to put purchasing power into the hands of the people rejected by the industrial machine, regardless of the fact that their brow's sweat is no longer needed to grease that machine. This she believes can be best done by the dividend and discount favored by the social creditors. These credits would be small enough so that initiative would not be strifled, large enough to prevent starvation. To refute the statement that such unearned increment "demoralizes" recipients, she asked, "Are you who live on inhreited or other private, unearned income, 'demoralized?' " Education for creative use of leisure, she indicated, would do away with the objectionable features of the plan. Actually, such payments would be a form of social inheritance, she said; man inheriting from the accumulated skill of the race, rather than from blood relatives. Whereas bankers now create money, by their privilege of giving or denying credit, Congress, she declared, as provided by the Constitution could and should create, by the same bookkeeping technique, credit from which the national dividend would be paid to all citizens alike.

Early this week Jack Jordan of Pine Inn attended the Greeters' convention at Santa Barbara and then spent a few days in Los Angeles.

Car Demonstration Proves Success

JOSEPH DANYSH, regional director of the federal arts project, dashed down to Carmel last Saturday to obtain a list of the relief artists from Mrs. Nelly Montague, curator of the Carmel art gallery. The two artists bragged, as artists will, of the merits of their respective prodigies. Joseph murmured rapturously of his potential Raphaels and was rapidly raising to heights ethereal when the practical Nelly rose impatiently and offered to take him over to Monterey and show him.

"Shall I drive?" offered the gallant Mr. Danysh, eyeing with green-eyed envy the shining new car.

"Yes, do," murmured Mrs. Montague. Backing out of the driveway, Danysh scratched roughly against the nearby rose bushes. He glanced apprehensively at Mrs. Montague, expecting a torrent of angry words. But Nelly just looked sympathetic. On the return trip Danysh deftly stepped on the brake with unconscious force and poor Nellie almost sailed through the windshield.

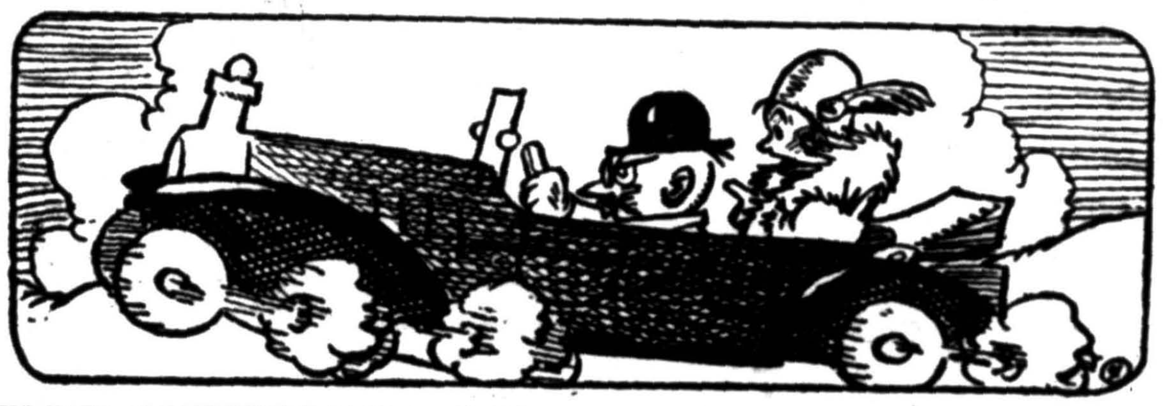
Said Mrs. Montague, ruefully rubbing her head, "My! But your brakes are tight!"

"What! My brakes are tight!" expostulated Danysh, "My brakes are tight! Isn't this your car?"

The startled Nelly hastened to assure him it emphatically was not. Danysh's vivid imagination envisaged his bright future suddenly dulled by grim prison walls. Terrified, he made for the nearest phone, expecting each moment to be his last of freedom. But Carmel's chief of police laughed heartily at the incident and told him to return the "stolen" car.

As the relieved Danysh drove up with the car, he was met at the curb by the glowering owner who had somewhat the appearance of a wrestler.

"Heh-heh——," nervously laughed Mr. Danysh, "Hello-heh—is this your car?" On being assured by the Hercules that it was, Danysh hastened to recount the error. At Danysh's explanation, the owner's grim, menacing visage transformed as he caught the humor of the incident and, laughing good-humoredly, he offered the greatly relieved Danysh his car for the remainder of his stay in Carmel.



Make Reservations for Luncheon at Once

Members and guests of the Monterey County League of Women Voters are again urged to make their reservations early for the luncheon meeting at Holman's solarium next Wednesday at 12 noon, with Mrs. Joseph Schoeninger, phone Carmel 75-J, or Mrs. Susie Chakurian, phone Monterey 7394.

The speaker at the monthly meeting Wednesday will be Dr. Ira B. Cross, his subject, "The New Deal in Economics." The program is arranged by the government and economic welfare study group, of which Miss Helen Davis is chairman.

A study group meeting was held last Tuesday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. Carl Voss, in Salinas. It was a combined session of three study groups, government and its operation, government and economic welfare, government and international cooperation.
